Canal Update June 2, 2017

We are still not where we want to be at this point but there is progress being made. They should have the rest of the slips installed by the end of Saturday. Next week they should have the asphalt installed for the parking and loading zones as well as the irrigation system in place. They poured the footer for the rest of the retaining wall this week and should have the wall itself poured next week. The steps are supposed to be finished today and the finger piers will also be completed next week. Attached are some pictures of the site.
